Senator Baucus' Staff Makes Introduction Of GreenWorld Partners to Caribbean Trade Officials

August 16, 2012 – Trade and Finance staff of Senator Max Baucus arranged introductions for Rhyno Stinchfield, CEO, and Rob Lockhart, CFO, of GreenWorld Partners to Trade Officials and Embassies of 6 Caribbean Islands. Officials from the Dominican Republic, Jamaica, Barbados, St. Kitts & Nevis, Belize and Puerto Rico all expressed their concerns about the rising costs of electricity because their primary source of power is from large diesel powered generators. Not only is this fuel source expensive to transport and burn it also contributes to adding more carbon into the atmosphere, which many islands communities around the world are concerned about.

“We were greeted very openly by these officials and they showed enthusiasm for our offerings of wind, solar, biomass and battery storage technologies. Because we focus on holistic energy solutions along with community development and local ownership of the projects they were very receptive to our concepts” said Stinchfield.

These initial meetings lead to a Caribbean Trade mission that GreenWorld Partners will take to Puerto Rico in October. There they will be exhibiting their technologies and services at the Caribbean Renewable Energy Forum from October 15th – 17th.

GreenWorld Partners is a Renewable Energy consulting firm based in Billings, MT and Boston, MA. They provide expertise in wind, solar, biomass and battery storage technologies along with electrical engineering services through their partners, Acuity Power Group.
